

“ I was very low and sad, so I called Macmillan. The person I spoke to listened, which was just what I needed. ”

Kiwi,
diagnosed with leukaemia

If you need to talk, we'll listen

The Macmillan Support Line offers confidential support to people living with cancer and their loved ones.

Cancer can touch every part of your life. If you are worried about money, work, treatment, or you just want to speak about whatever matters to you, call us. We offer guidance and can help you find the right information and support in your area.

Find specialist support at the end of the phone

-  Our cancer information advisers offer a listening ear and are ready to talk about whatever matters to you.
-  Our cancer information nurse specialists offer personalised support and can talk you through information about your diagnosis and treatment and how to manage symptoms and side effects.
-  Our financial guides can support with all aspects of personal finances such as budgeting, mortgages, insurance, pensions, estate planning and more.
-  The work support team can help you understand your rights at work, offer guidance on how to talk to your employer and negotiate adjustments at work.
-  Our welfare rights advisers can help you access financial support and grants you may be entitled to.
-  When it comes to bills, our energy advice team can check if you're entitled to any additional support through charitable grants – no matter who supplies your gas, water or electricity.
